What can I do, Sarah Jane, to stop those awful men from staring me so in the face?" "Do as I do," replied Sarah, with a sly look, "show your ankles!"

SALUTARIS! SALUTARIS! SALUTARIS!

"Non est vivere sed valere vita."

Man is mortal, because no human being is physically perfect. Could a man with a frame perfectly complete, and free from the germs of organic disease be found, that man might live forever. To prove this two things are requisite: First, that the physical organization be sound; second, that the laws of Nature be observed and the tone of the vital functions maintained. A constitution originally unsound and affected by organic disease, cannot be restored to pristine strength and perfect health, by any medicine. But where no organic disease exists, a genuine Tonic, which repairs the waste of the vital functions, is of inestimable worth. The SALUTARIS BITTERS is such a Tonic. It is a Tonic—not a mere stimulant. The difference is momentous, almost inappreciable. A stimulant supplies temporary strength, followed by speedy reaction, which leaves the unfortunate subject in a worse state than that in which it found him. By the use of ordinary stimulants, the sick man may be excited for an hour or a day, to a delusive strength and evanescent exhilaration. All consciousness of weakness, depression and pain, vanishes for the moment, but only to be succeeded by a more complete and hopeless prostration. The use of stimulants, begets the absolute necessity of their continued use, until the wretched victim is reduced to a condition so forlorn that stimulants cease to stimulate! Then all is over, and death is inevitable. But with a Tonic, the case is far otherwise. A Tonic produces not a temporary exhilaration, but a permanent increase of strength and vitality. A genuine Tonic, strengthens the vital functions, and is followed by no reaction. It is confidently claimed for the SALUTARIS BITTERS, that it is a genuine Tonic, and not a stimulant, and that in all cases of nervous debility, of torpor, or weakness of the Digestion, of incipient Dyspepsia, of sluggishness of the Circulation, of depression of the Vital Functions, it is the best remedy ever discovered. SALUTARIS will not raise the dead; it will not remove organic disease; it will not cure the incurable; it is no panacea, but in all cases where a Tonic is required, it is the BEST TONIC now known. SALUTARIS has no powerful regulative effect on the bowels; if properly used, it is a certain cure for all curable cases of constiveness. Where a clearly defined tendency to constiveness is developed, its regular use is an unfailing remedy. SALUTARIS is an invaluable medicine for female complaints. It has all the beneficial effects of the best Holland gin, without being liable to the objections against that beverage. When taken by females for this specific purpose, it should be mixed with water in equal quantities. SALUTARIS is an almost instantaneous remedy for heart-burn, and the disagreeable symptoms that sometimes follow it, it is no panacea, but in all cases where such cases it should be taken pure. For ages, the great problem, proposed by medical men has been to discover a Tonic which should be free from the reactionary properties of those stimulants which are in everyday use. In the SALUTARIS BITTERS this desideratum has at length been found. It furnishes a healthy, and not a morbid stimulus. The happy effects which it produces are permanent, not temporary; real, not apparent. Its tendency is to assist Nature, not to outrange her. Where it can effect no cure, it can assuredly do no harm. Its regular and continued use will cure all diseases of the Liver, where they are curable, and alleviate them where they cannot be cured. As an appetizer, SALUTARIS is unequalled. Directions for use accompany every bottle.
